WHO WANTS WOOL?

Farmers are in a peculiar position just at present.

Wool to sell and no one to buy it. We heard of a farmer that hauled a load of wool to Xenia and after visiting all the dealers did not find a buyer and the price had nothing to do with it. It seems that buyers have received word from headquarters in the East to buy no more wool.

Meantime we read of the $30,000,000 net profit last year of the American Woolen Mill Co. It is said the government held great quantities of wool and recently released it and the market has gone to pot.

But cheap wool is not making us cheap clothing. If wool was given the clothing manufacturers the millions would not be more money for making it into cloth and then into suits.

We are told in some plants wools are being paid as high as 75 cents a button-hole in cluding the sewing on of the button. From this you can see what it is costing to have a suit of clothes made.

ROAD COMPLETED.

The Columbus Pike East of town has been completed and the force and equipment moved to Xenia where the Dayton and Xenia pike where a mile or more of that road will be resurfaced. The contractors on the west end of the pike finished rolling Tuesday and the road will be open to travel the last of the week according to reports. Both sections of the road will be closed later in the summer.

OUT FOR HARDING.

The Ohio State Journal on Tuesday editorially came out for Senator Harding for president and promised loyal support. In as much as the Journal had bitterly opposed Harding for Wood in the primary campaign it's position now indicates that the party will be united this fall.

DIES IN WAGON.

DARLINGTON MAY WITHDRAW

When Congressman Fess filed his declaration with the Clark county board of elections, Attorney Charles Darlington seeing that it must be filed in the Congressman's home county immediately filed for this congressional contest. The filing of Dr. Fess was discovered in time to have the paper transferred to this county. As a result Mr. Darlington may withdraw.

PRESIDENTIAL AND VICE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEES

WARREN G. HARDING, OHIO

CALVIN COOLIDGE, MASS.

Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio was named for the Republican presidential nomination at the convention in Chicago last Saturday afternoon on the tenth ballot after one of the most noted campaigns in the party's history.

Governor Lowden and General Wood deadlocked and remained so for a number of ballots giving the Harding following an opportunity of winning unopposed delegations and starting a stampede towards the Ohio Senator.

Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts was named for vice president on the first ballot for vice president.

Senator Harding is the publisher of the Marion Star, a bank director and stockholder in numerous enterprises and has been before the public for a number of years. Previous to being elected senator in this state he had served in the legislature and was at one time lieutenant governor. He is 55 years of age and has been engaged in the publication of a newspaper, having first edited the Ohio Central College paper at Xenia.

A feature of the nomination is that it occurred on his father's birthday, who was 76 last Saturday. Another interesting point is that Senator Harding's birthday comes on election day in November.

The congressional investigation of the primary as to the vast amount of money used resulted in public sentiment drifting to the Senator. The Wood and Lowden campaigns as well as that of Senator Johnson has turned the public against the present primary method of nominations.

Senator Harding is a recognized campaign orator and a man of literary talent. He is a student of public questions and his experience as a statesman should commend him to every voter.

Governor Coolidge, while not so well known in the West has made a name for himself as a good governor, standing for law and order. His greatest work of public interest was in the way he handled the policemen's strike in Boston when thugs and the lower element of the city reviled the city.

The election of Harding and Coolidge means the return of democratic government and the rights of the people and its representatives restored as they were previous to the world war. The brand of Wilson autocratic government will never again be known in America.

SLEEP WALKER FALLS AND BREAKS THREE RIBS.

Prestley Townsley, who is said to be troubled with somnambulism, had an unusual experience Monday night when he fell from his bed alongside a window onto the roof below and rolled to the ground.

As a result he suffered three broken ribs and minor bruises and was unconscious for some time. Dr. Marsh was called and treated the injured man.

SALARIES BUT NO SERVICE

The new health law that was passed by the legislature to make a model community in every town and township. The old boards of health that served gratis were disposed of for a high priced health officer for the county. One was elected in this county. His salary we suppose is being paid. We have yet to ever hear of this officer being in town on official business. Conditions warrant some action. Today we have no board of health and the law is being enforced just about as many predicted when it was passed. The only observance of the law is in the health officer drawing his salary. Probably that was all the law intended.

BUYS THE ARNOLD FARM.

Clarence Stuckey who is on the Xenia farm has purchased the Arnold farm of 34 acres, formerly known as the McMillan homestead on the Columbus pike where the college first opened. The price $12,000. A new land value on that road. Possession will be given probably in the fall if not by spring. G. H. Smith made the sale.

THE UNION RULES.

Springfield has a high school orchestra lead by A. R. Juergens, who is the instructor and also a member of the musicians union. Under the by-laws of the union he cannot direct such an orchestra for a public entertainment without losing his standing with the union. The union claims that his orchestra deprives regular musicians of a job. The school authorities claim by this orchestra they are developing musicians.

MARCUS FELT BITTER WHEN HARDING WAS NOMINATED.

If there was one man in Greene county with joy in his soul it was Judge Marcus Shoup when he learned that Senator Harding had been nominated for the presidency at the Republican convention.

Judge Shoup experienced some gloomy days back in the presidential primary in April while managing the Harding campaign in this county. The county was lost to Harding when Wood carried it by a little over 100 votes.

The Wood campaign was under the direction of the Marshall-Gowdy faction that had connected themselves with the Wood campaign funds, and "money talks." The Harding forces had no money and it was an up-hill proposition to meet the Wood campaign.

When it comes to determination no one has it on the Judge and he braved the Wood money and kept an organization together to do the best possible for Harding. The Wood forces even went so far as to migrate one of the Senator's statements about the farmer and dollar wheat to swing the farmer vote but everything is fair in war and politics.

The situation in Greene county in the presidential primary was no different from what Harding's friends have found in other counties in this state. It was the many thousands of dollars spent to force the Wood nomination that brought about the nomination of Senator Harding.

Judge Shoup was a happy man when Harding was nominated. He then could look back to the presidential primary and see wherein money had been spent in vain by "reformers."

VISITS JAMESTOWN PIKE

State Highway Commissioner Taylor of Columbus with part of his staff visited this section Tuesday and drove over the Jamestown pike that has been under consideration for improvement. The estimates prepared by the state were considered high but a snag was struck when the state would allow but $40,000 as it's share of the improvement. This was only about half of what the county commissioners expected. Mr. Taylor has informed the commissioners that Federal money can be used on inter-county highways unless they are part of main market roads. His department will make new estimates of the cost of the improvement with a view of getting them reduced. The improvement is now up to the state department.

IMPRESSED WITH CONVENTION

Norman Foster, who represented Cedarville College at the Republican National Convention at Chicago, as a guest of the Ohio Republican Advisory committee, is back and reports that he was greatly impressed with the convention. He regards it a great educational treat and during the demonstrations had a wonderful opportunity to study the psychology of the mob. Mr. Foster has not yet decided whether he will teach this coming year or will take up post-graduate work.

The school board has not been able to sell the bonds for the trucks. It is likely that the bonds will have to be traded in to the successful bidders as cash. We understand some of the truck companies are willing to accept the bonds that way.

Miss Thelma Smith injured an ankle Wednesday and for a time it was thought to be broken. She was taken to Xenia for an x-ray examination but the injury was only a sprain.

Creswell Helped Land Harding

It is Cedarville then Chicago. Just so was it at the Republican national convention at Chicago last week when Paul H. Creswell of this place, deputy county auditor brought the state and the county into prominence when it came to nominating an Ohio man, Senator Warren G. Harding for the presidency. P. H. was at the convention bearing credentials for a doorkeeper but when it came to the exciting tenth ballot race such a position could keep the Deputy County Auditor from the stage. The Sunday Chicago Tribune describes the bandwagon parade as follows:

The story is headed: "Say, Boys and Girls, Let's Pick Harding!" Done" or "Willis and Creswell Start Something."

"Say boys—and girls—lets nominate Harding."

—Willis, of Ohio.

The jolly companionable words that roared Willis of Ohio had spoken on Friday were the only ones that had soared above the tumult and the shouting when they were in the very rigor of the game on Saturday.

In that dusty hour, when state after state was wheeling—when it was not scurrying—into Mr. Harding's columns, all the pompous glimmering and it was the seven rough and ready words out of the vernacular that made the tired fighting men lean back and laugh and forget their troubles.

Even Henry Cabot Lodge permitted himself the indecency of a grin—well, no, not a grin, but a tired smile as the hurled scrawled placard was placed periously near the sacred gang way from which he had vehemently shoved an over zealous journalist earlier in the day.

Paul Creswell's Triumph

And Paul H. Creswell of Xenia, deputy auditor of Greene county, Ohio, was a very happy man by gosh.

For, though the words were the words of Willis on Friday, it was young Mr. Creswell, the deputy auditor, in the patent, self ventilating linen cap that is prime for traveling, who resurrected them on Saturday and lifted them high above the din and heat of battle.

During the dramatic tenth ballot when the wheeling into the column and the scurrying for the new and resplendent band wagon became a frantic heaved steaming from the sloppy heaved regions of the Columbus crowd.

He had found a big white sheet of Bristol board that read on one side "For Foremen Only." On the other he had scribbled the words of Willis. Then he hung the placard down from the gallery to the feet of the platform as you face the chairman.

CHEERS, LAUGHS, VICTORY.

A big, hearty, heartening cheer greeted it. A roar of laughter followed the cheer from end to end and from side to side of the tired old hall.

The deputy auditor of Greene county took heart of grace, descended into the arena, strode with many an "excuse me fellows" over the pine tables in the newspaper shambles and hung his placard in the comfortable view of a dozen thousand people.

Then he dropped pleased and panting into a chair by Levy Mayer, one of the few momentous men who can be an agreeable looker on at affairs even when he cannot cut ice in connection with them, and Levy said, the deputy auditor on the back and remarked "My boy you've said it."

Mr. Creswell had, indeed, erected more than he expected. After all the rancors and the rhodomontades his frank diffused the trivial consciousness that we are still boys and girls, and even amid the strain and fume of these colossal diets that make one governing system unique, just folks together.

The glad whoopee was Mr. Creswell's reward by the band wagon continued joyously to fill.

SHOWERS WERE WELCOME

This section after a treat of several days of excessive hot weather had fair showers on Saturday and Sabbath. Monday evening it was almost a cloud-burst but no particular damage was done.

Saturday the wind was high and blew down a large part of the frame work for the stone elevator at the lime kilns at a loss of several hundred dollars.

The barn on the former Kendall damaged by the wind the same day. Monday evening we had a heavy electrical storm and lightning struck the straw pile on the Andrew White farm occupied by Wm. Clemans and burned it but there were no buildings close enough to take fire.

While the rains were welcome for corn, grass and garden truck, the wheat was just in bloom and no doubt would not be helped by such a hard rain.

ARRIVED HOME TUESDAY.

Andrew Jackson arrived home on Tuesday from Chicago where he attended the Republican convention where his personal friend, Senator Harding was nominated. Mr. Jackson says the delegates could do nothing else under the circumstances than recognize Harding who had made a clean campaign. The use of money on the part of the Wood and Lowden managers would have left the party in a close position for the coming campaign had either been nominated.

This is the tenth Republican national convention that Mr. Jackson has attended.

THEY WILL LEARN LATER.

The Wilmington News man gets away with the story of fractional votes in a convention in good style. When women get suffrage may be they will know how this happens. Our 8-year old son can't understand how in the Sam Hill any man could get fractions of votes in a convention; neither does his mother, and we've taken the position that such things are not for women and children to know, and so far have gotten away with it.

VISITED BACK HOME.

W. H. Smith has returned after a trip to his old home in Eastern West Virginia. He reports that conditions in that part of the country are about like what we have here. Hundreds of acres of timber has been cut. As for the fruit industry it is being given up as orchard men are not able to handle the crop under present labor conditions. Peaches have always been a good crop in that section but this year growers cannot get crates to ship them.

The Tricolor.

This really owes its origin to Mary Queen of Scots. It was the white, as we know to tradition, gave the tricolor device to Paris—the white to represent the house of her royal husband, the dauphin, the blue for Scotland, and the red for the red-coated Swiss of the royal bodyguard. The Revolutionists in 1789 adopted Mary's colors for their own.

Are You Letting Them Call Your Good Car "An Old Can"?

Do you stall at the crossings and hold up the mob? Do the fast boys take boulevard picks on your bus? Do you sneak down dark alleys to sidestep abuse?

You, too, could be driving on four wicked wheels, and make them sit up and take notice of you. Just load up with good.

Columbus Gasoline

You're way out of luck if you're not using Columbus these days. It's really good gasoline because it's good real gasoline—par efficiency fuel that makes all automobiles—old and new—run according to Hoyle.

"Starting and acceleration made easy with the first tankful."

That's the Columbus promise. And Columbus will make good with you, just as it has made good with thousands of other Ohio motorists.

If your car is shy the go-get-'em punch, load up with Columbus today.

That's the one sure way to put pep and ambition in sluggish motors.
